

The Intelligencer.

Office: Nos. 25 and 27 Fourteenth Street.

Mr. S. G. W. Morrison, who has lately returned from a business trip West, reports an improved feeling among the buyers of Wheeling manufactures, and a general belief that times have "turned the corner" and are slowly changing for the better.

ZANESVILLE claims 20,000 people. She ought to have at least that many, as she has a debt of $538,243.18.

HINTS FOR OUR WEST VIRGINIA FARMERS.

In an address at the International Dairy Fair in New York, on Monday evening, General B. F. Butler sought to dispel the fallacy that successful dairy farming requires the ownership of very extended acreage. It is doubtless true, as pointed out by General Butler, that the common idea of a "dairy farm" is the proprietary of a domain which in Europe would be almost a princely principality. On the contrary, the dairy, like all other agricultural industries, may be most profitably carried on by those whose lands are of the most limited extent and the most highly cultivated. In other words, that the cow is most profitably kept and produces the best results where land is the most subdivided. The condition of agriculture in France is cited in proof of this statement. In 1868, before losing a part of her territory as a result of the war with Germany, France, with not so much area as Texas, raised more wheat than the United States all told. In that year the wheat crop of France was 350,000,000 bushels, and for the same period the wheat production of the United States was only about 240,000,000 bushels. In 1867 we sent to England wheat to the value of $9,000,000, while in the same year France sent to England $11,000,000 worth of wheat to spread on the bread made from our wheat. As an example of what may be the profits of the smaller industries of farming, which, by the farmers of the United States are reckoned almost valueless, it is an astonishing fact that in the year 1865 France exported as much in value of eggs to England alone as we exported of bacon and hams. Two-fifths of the people in France live in the cities and three-fifths live in the country. This is a surprising result as compared with England, where four-fifths of the whole people live in towns and one-fifth only in the country. There are nearly 6,000,000 houses in France, and far the greater part of them cottages, with small plots of land. Nearly the whole of this number are small freeholds belonging to their occupants. It is plain that the secret of these wonderful results in the tillage of the soil is the minute subdivision of the land.

Some of the Facts Connected With the Failure of the Mingo Furnace.

Our attention was called yesterday to a showing up of Mingo Furnace affairs that appeared in the Pittsburgh Leader a few days ago. The statements therein made are not news by any means to the stockholders of that unfortunate concern. They were current here, as between individuals, during the summer, and were to have been furnished for publication in the INTELLIGENCER at that time, but for prudential reasons on the part of the directors were withheld. The statements in the Pittsburgh paper are predicated in the main on facts brought to light by Mr. Harry Caldwell, of this city, who was engaged as an expert by several stockholders to overhaul the accounts of the concern after its failure. Mr. Caldwell could only make a partial report as to what he discovered and suspected, owing to the fact that he was shut off from the books at the close of the second week. He did the best he could in that short time, and gleaned enough to satisfy the stockholders that they had been badly deluded as to the status of their concern for at least three years before it failed. It seems that at the annual meeting in April, 1875, the President's report summarized the year's business as follows: Metal on hand April 1, 1874, 417 tons; metal during the year, 12,451 tons; sold, 12,464 tons, plus 55 tons arising from difference in shipment weights, etc.; total, 12,519 tons, leaving 578 tons on hand. In 1875 the meeting was greeted with the following: Metal on hand, 378 tons; metal during the year, 13,888 tons; sold, 14,710 tons, plus 104 tons, difference in weights, etc., equal to 14,814 tons. This should leave, April 1, 1876, 1,077 tons. In 1876 the business was reported to be as follows: Metal on hand, 1,077 tons; sold, 12,032 tons, plus 48 tons, equal to 12,080 tons. Sold during the year, 11,876 tons. On hand, as shown by books, 1,683 tons. The President's report gave the material on hand as 2,815 tons—seven hundred and thirty tons more than the books showed. The monetary value of the fictitious metal was $20 per ton, or $34,000. Further, the committee ascertained that there was really in that year a deficit in assets (metal), of $1,474,749.00, so that the over-estimated value of metal was $2,000,000.

Again, when the committee got down to 1877 they found the following showing by the books: On hand, 1,683 tons; metal during the year, 14,125 tons; sold, 13,144 tons, equal to 13,172 tons; sold, 13,927 tons. This left 1,225 tons. But again the officers' report came forward with a statement to the effect that there were on hand 1,411 tons! By actual investigation it was found that the committee had made an error of $1,474,749.00, besides some $11,500 of worthless "personal assets" which appeared in accounts of assets and liabilities in the July meeting. The works sold the other day comprise what cost $225,000, and include two blast furnaces, thirty-two dwelling houses, thirty-three acres surface, and two hundred and ninety-eight acres coal privileges. Negotiations are now pending between a "first" and "second" mortgage bondholders, looking to some basis of settlement. Meanwhile the Mingo mill is silent and cold.

The Country as Represented by the Bank.

The New York Public of December 5th is on our table. It gives the relative bank clearings of the principal cities for the months of November this year and last. Up at Pittsburgh we notice that the clearings fell off from $17,690,910 in November, 1877, to $15,905,494 this November, a decline of 13.2 per cent. At Cincinnati there was a decline of 10.7 and at Chicago an increase of 4.0 per cent. The total exchanges at twenty-three cities amounted, during the month of November, to $2,359,565,632. Of this enormous total $1,641,641,563 were made through the New York Clearing House, and $717,924,069 at all the other cities. The total at Philadelphia was $116,473,642; that at Baltimore, $143,646,092; the total at Boston, which ranks next to New York, was $79,983,742; the total at Chicago was $77,995,784. Comparing the exhibit for November this year with November, 1877, the Public says:

"During November, 1878, the country distributed to consumers 15 per cent more goods than were distributed in November, 1877, at prices lower by 15 per cent. For example, exports of cotton were about 420,000 bales, against 375,000 last year, a gain of 12 per cent, but there was a still greater decline in price. The receipts of grain at lake ports were 18 per cent larger than in November of last year, but the decline in prices was fully as great. Hence the payments made through all the clearing houses in November, after deduction for those which arise from stock speculation in New York, amount to about $2,025,000,000, while the payments in November, 1877, with deduction for sales of stock, amount to about $2,026,000,000. In effect the same volume of business is done in November, though at a range of prices fully 15 per cent lower than in 1877. The sales of stock at New York were 3,344,000 shares, against 2,775,000 shares last year, but the increase of exchanges was about $95,000,000, so that there was a considerable gain in transactions during the month on stock operations. But in the cities outside New York the aggregate decrease in exchanges was about $30,000,000, or 5.1 per cent."

THE MOUNDVILLE.

MOUNDVILLE, December 6, 1878.

Editor Intelligencer.

"When I last wrote you our people were considerably excited over the 'oil question.' It is true that the company, bearing on Col. Thompson's farm, over the river from our town, when they came to the first stone, or what oil men call the first oil stone, found oil in small quantities, sufficient, however, to induce them to stop here and go to work to get all the leases from the farmers on this side of the river that could be had. After securing all the territory that they could get, they commenced work again and sunk their well through the first stone without finding much oil. Then they drilled deeper, and they were not much disappointed, as they did not expect to get much oil until they struck the second and oil stone. This they have not yet done, as they have been very much annoyed by a strong rain, which has made its appearance immediately below the first stone. If they had been boring for salt water they would have struck a 'bonanza,' sure. They do not seem to be much discouraged, and are working away like beavers."

WE HAD A POSITIVE DEMONSTRATION OF THE FACT THAT A MAN IN THIS AGE OF THE WORLD MAY BECOME 'POSSESSED OF A DEVIL.'

Charles Charlton, a young man of this place, aged about eighteen years, was taken to the jail about a week ago by the name of Gibson, and demanded that he be immediately released. Charlton was busy at the time and told him to wait his turn. Charlton at once got on the rampage, and seizing a razor, drove it into the back of the man's head, and into the kitchen of a hotel kept by a man by the name of Weidbusch. Then Charlton armed himself with some chunks of old iron, and charged into the kitchen, where he was again and again repulsed by the men who were there. Charlton was then taken to the jail, and the case was referred to the grand jury. Charlton was then taken to the jail, and the case was referred to the grand jury.

YESTERDAY ENQUIRE PURDY, ON COMPLAINT OF GIBSON COMMITTED HIM TO JAIL, IN A DEFENSE OF $500, BUT HE INTENDS TO DEFEND HIMSELF.

Justice Hughes, who was committed by the grand jury for the "Dry Ridge" robbery, succeeded in finding bondsmen for his appearance and is now at liberty.

INVESTIGATION AT THE COLUMBIAN PENITENTIARY.

COLUMBIAN, December 6.—The Directors of the State Penitentiary are in session here investigating the charges made by the Chief Warden, Mr. Whorter, against Deputy Warden Quinn.

The charges embrace drunkenness while on duty, appropriation of State property and a general unfitness for his position.

They will also consider the charges of drunkenness, the use of State property for personal and family purpose, and the liberation of a female convict, before her term of service expired, against Warden Quinn.

It is stated that the total 'exaggeration' of personal property given as assets of the Mingo Works, the committee found to foot up the nice sum of $7,474,749.00, besides some $11,500 of worthless 'personal assets' which appeared in accounts of assets and liabilities in the July meeting.

BY TELEGRAPH.

TO THE DAILY INTELLIGENCER.

GENERAL NEWS.

Secretary Schurz Discusses the Indian Question—He Defends the Policy of the Interior Department.

Hoes, Not Guns, the Medium of Indian Civilization—Past Shortcomings of the Indian Bureau under the War Department.

Last Day of the Commercial Convention at New Orleans—The Resolutions They Passed and Referred to the Tender Mercies of Congress.

WASHINGTON.

SECRETARY SCHURZ ON THE INDIAN BUREAU.

WASHINGTON, December 6.—The Joint Commission considering the transfer of the Indian Bureau to the Military Department heard Secretary Schurz today. He disclaimed any personal desire to retain control of the Indian service under the Interior Department. No branch of the Department's business is so troublesome and thankless as that of the Indians, and he could only be secured through the provisions of civilization, education and kind treatment. This the military were not fitted to promote.

The Secretary quoted from the report of the Sioux Commission, signed by Generals Sherman, Terry, Auger and others, setting forth in effect that if peace with the Indians was desired the management of their affairs should be placed under the civil Department of the Government. Now I agree with these gentlemen in this point. There are great many officers of the army who have excellent ideas about Indian affairs, but it is another thing to bring the Indian into the military Department. The policy of the Government he didn't consider placed with the patient labor required to place the hoe in the Indian's hand and teach him how to use it.

He denied very emphatically that the red tape system of reporting Indian outbreaks, which had been asserted, was required under the present administration of Indian affairs. Whenever a case arises where prompt action is necessary, he, in person, communicated with the Secretary of War or the General of the Army, as the case may be, thereby causing but a few very short delays in perfecting the necessary arrangements to meet the emergency. In some months, as intimated by Secretary Sherman.

He claimed that the demand for the transfer of the Bureau from the Civil to the Military Department was based upon assumptions rather than facts. His own opinion was that the Indian Bureau is credited with Indian wars, which in reality occurred previous to its organization. Under the civil management the cause of the majority of wars, in his opinion, is the breaking of treaties, together with the encroachment of greedy whites upon the settlements allotted to the would-be peaceful Indian. He didn't believe such military officers as Generals Sherman, Sheridan and others, who had been in the field, would be so easily misled by the promises of greedy whites upon the settlements allotted to the would-be peaceful Indian. He didn't believe such military officers as Generals Sherman, Sheridan and others, who had been in the field, would be so easily misled by the promises of greedy whites upon the settlements allotted to the would-be peaceful Indian.

The Secretary said in reply to the question asked by General Hoes, that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to lead them to higher states of civilization. The Secretary said that the Indian Bureau had been very faithful and efficient. Their duties, were, however, in connection with the existing state of affairs, and not with a view of civilizing the Indians.

He said he had read in the papers statements by General Marcy that when in the War Department, the bureau was worked smoothly enough, but that there was no suspicion of any fraud. "It was, in fact," he said, "as if angels had descended upon the earth doing good ministrations among the savages to